

Reading Emotions

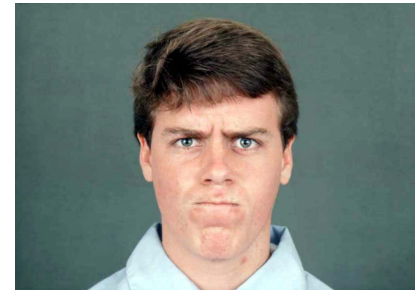

K. Lymer¹, R. Philip¹, A. Atkinson², A. Calder³

¹University of Edinburgh, ²University of Durham, <http://www.dur.ac.uk/a.p.atkinson>,

³MRC Cognition and Brain Sciences Unit, Cambridge.

Researchers who study emotions use a variety of stimuli – here are a few examples:

Matsumoto D, Ekman P. Japanese and Caucasian facial expressions of emotion (JACFEE). 1988.

Please visit our “Reading Emotions” activity to see how well you do reading emotions from pictures and sounds and video clips.....!